

A German named Geistfeldt living about nine or ten miles East of Elgin, died from sunstroke on Thursday morning, and was buried Saturday morning in the country. He was an old settler, and well known to many of this city.